PRESIDENT'S COMMENTARY

Dr. John Schultz

38th National FOCA President

The F.O.C.A. National Executive Board and Board of Trustees met for the Annual Spring Board Meetings February 9 – 11 at the Kingston Plantation in Myrtle Beach, SC. During the meetings the Board discussed many topics as follow-up to Convention actions taken at the 2005 National Convention and in anticipation of the 2006 National Convention.

The Board reviewed the Financial Report presented by the Treasurer. As of the Meeting there was not a significant change in membership and income was within projections. The “emergency/temporary” dues change was discussed. It was reported that the majority of discussion at the Fall District Conventions were generally favorable. It is anticipated that a formal Bylaw amendment regarding a “permanent” dues change will be presented for consideration at the 2006 Convention.

The Board reviewed the preliminary reports of the several committees formed at the 2005 Convention. The Charitable Review Committee had several proposed scenarios to enhance and streamline our many charitable efforts. The Committee will continue their work and present their final report and recommendations to the National Convention. The Strategic Planning Committee presented their plans for the development of short, medium, and long-term goals of the organization. It is anticipated that this effort will include input from many current and former members of the Fellowship.

Plans for the Leadership Training Summit were reviewed by the Board. Despite concern about the chosen date the consensus was that the proposed program was excellent. Final approval was given to hold the initial Summit at the National Basketball Tournament. A recommendation to hold a second Summit in conjunction with the National Convention also passed.

Plans for the National Convention were reported by the Convention Committee. The program looks to provide loads of fun and entertainment. The Hotel facilities are outstanding and provide many activities themselves. National Spiritual Advisor Fr. William Evansky discussed plans for a first ever Clergy/Spiritual Advisor Conference to be held at the National Convention. Based on comments from the Delegates at the 2005 Convention it was decided that this Convention will have more time for sessions and breakouts.

Junior Department Director Fr. Emil Hutynan review plans for the Junior Department in general and Junior Olympics camp in particular. He along with Ron Tucci and Neena Malinich prepared an outstanding summary of plans and guidelines for Camp. Their hard work is truly appreciated.

Our ongoing Seminarian Assistance and Gift Programs were reviewed. There was much discussion on how to improve these programs while at the same time reduce duplication of effort. Concrete recommendations will be discussed at the Summer Executive Board Meeting and presented at the Convention.

Finally, The Board of Trustees reviewed and passed a plan to implement the “Policies, Standards, and Procedures of the Orthodox Church in America on Sexual Misconduct” which were adopted at the 2005 Convention. Provisions and requirements for Criminal Background Checks were also passed.

The Spring Board Meetings were productive and laid a good foundation for the work to be done at the National Convention. There will be much important work to be accomplished at the Convention. Delegates attending the Convention will help to create the blueprint for the future of the FOCA. Please plan on attending this Convention as a Delegate and participate in this important work as well as the great social activities planned by the Convention Committee.

EDITOR'S NOTES

Editor, Orthodox Christian JOURNAL

Christ is Risen! On behalf of the entire Journal staff, I extend the heartiest greetings of Holy Pascha to all Fellowship members, friends and readers of this publication. Joining us are the many supporters of the Journal who personally convey their own Paschal greetings in the pages of this issue.

Our cover features an icon of St. Andrew the First Called, the FOCA's patron saint, and Mary Jane Lucak urges you to support this year's United Fund which benefits the many Orthodox Christian charities we fund (many of which are listed on the cover). Managing Editor/IPP John Kruchok provides the details inside and invites all of us to join the "Friends of St. Andrew" in order to meet and exceed the UF goal.

Highlighting the spring edition are invitations from the Junior department to participate in this summer's newly renamed National Sports Tournament at St. Vladimir's Camp in Ohio. Details are given and counselors are sought. Check out the back cover and contact Ron Tucci or Neena Malinich to register. Juniors from the Upper New York State District fill us in on their recent convention/bowling tourney & we welcome the newest Junior chapter from Christ the Savior Church in Milton, NY - #252-J! We also have news from the South River "R" Club, the St. Mary's Juniors and the New Jersey District. Keep us informed of your chapter & district events, and be sure to include some digital photos.

A feature of this issue is "Reflections on Berisso" by new FOCA member Jennifer Mourar, who received an FOCA OCMC short-term missionary grant to participate in a special January trip to Argentina. Read the moving account of her two weeks assisting needy fellow Orthodox Christians - young adults especially should consider applying for future trips, an experience of a lifetime according to Jennifer.

In our center section the New Jersey District and "Myrtle the Turtle" bring us four pages of photos and info on the upcoming 80th National Convention in Myrtle Beach, SC. Suitable for "pull out," this special insert contains everything you need to know, from the schedule of events to accommodation options. Elsewhere in this edition are a promo and entry form for the Summer Sports tourney to be held in conjunction with the convention. See y'all in South Carolina.

Rounding out this edition are an update from President Dr. John Schultz, an invite to the annual Richie Miskiv scholarship dinner, and a Kidz Page activity for Pentecost Sunday. And last but not least, we managed to squeeze in a few photos from last week-end's (as I write) enormously successful basketball tourney hosted by the Cleveland "R" Club - we'll have full coverage on it, the bowling tourney in Maple Shade, NJ, and the winners of the "Celebrations of Faith" contest in the summer issue. Until next time, enjoy the Fellowship you find on these pages!

The FOCA's United Fund – Your Gift Funds the Vision

FOCA UNITED Fund

For more than fifty years, the FOCA's "United Fund" has raised nearly two million dollars of support for Orthodox seminaries, youth programs, scholarships, missions and other charitable projects. The annual drive, which ends officially each May 31st, is funded by a voluntary goal of $15 per member and through the personal gifts from the "Friends of St. Andrew" program. The United Fund is the main stewardship effort of the FOCA's network of chapters throughout America. In concert with the organization's mission statement of supporting youth and missions, the fund assists young people pursuing higher education at colleges, universities and seminaries; provides for an intern annually in the Youth, Young Adult and Campus Ministries Department of the Orthodox Church in America; provides support to the St. Vladimir's Camp and Retreat Center in Ohio and helps fund annual Christmas gifts to the children of our seminarians. The mission services category of the fund supports the work of the FOCA's "Mission Hotline" program and when specially earmarked by chapters or individual donors, St. Herman's, St. Tikhon's, St. Vladimir's and Christ the Savior Seminaries receive funding annually. The major gift funded by the program is a $9,000 annual contribution to the Fellowship of Orthodox Stewards (FOS) for the internship. Scholarships totaling approximately $10,000 are distributed each year.

The United Fund, not to be confused with the "United Way" or any of that program's recipients, is a unified approach to funding many needs of the Church. Throughout its history, it has been modified to assist many causes. Over the years, past recipients have included the "Alaska Orthodox Project", the Millennium Bell Tower at the War Memorial Shrine in Washington D.C. and the International Orthodox Christian Charities (IOCC) to mention a few. Goals, percentages of unearmarked funds and recipients are approved at each national convention for the upcoming fundraising year.

Contributions can either be unearmarked or earmarked. Funds "unearmarked" are divided based on the percentages of support based on a "pie chart", i.e. 40% for one category, 20 % for three other categories, totaling 100%. Charities which receive a portion of the "pie" include the William Fekula Scholarships, Junior Department/Youth Ministry and Mission Services/Outreach. Charities approved to receive "earmarked" or specially designated funds include the four seminaries and the St. Vladimir's camp in Ohio.

Your chapter and personal contributions to the United Fund assist both needy Orthodox Christians and the Church's programs and institutions. These gifts, raised through the FOCA's network, also help recognize the organization's long standing support to the Church and its people.

Gifts to the United Fund can be sent to:

"The Friends of St. Andrew" Meeting and Exceeding the FOCA's United Fund

"The Friends of St. Andrew" is an important source of meeting and exceeding the FOCA's United Fund annual drive. It is a personal gift of stewardship to FOCA supported charities such as the Fellowship of Orthodox Stewards (FOS), St. Herman's, St. Tikhon's, St. Vladimir's and Christ the Savior Seminaries, the William Fekula Scholarship program, the St. Vladimir's camp and retreat center, youth ministry and mission services.

Formerly known as the "St. Andrew's Fellowship" the program was established during the presidency of Dr. Robert Weger (1986-1988) as a bold move to increase the FOCA's United Goal from $30,000 to $40,000 annually. Individual (or couple) donors contributed at least $100 to United Fund. Approximately $10,000 was immediately raised from the program's inception and has continued for the nearly twenty years of existence. Each year at the national convention, a reception or breakfast is organized as a means to gather the donors in fellowship and appreciation from the National Executive Board. The program was renamed by the convention body in 2004 and various levels of giving were added as an effort to boost fundraising. The various levels of giving include: Platinum: $500 and up • Gold: $300-$499 • Silver: $150-$299 • Bronze: $100-$149

Each steward's gift can be earmarked lump sum or in designated amounts to the FOCA's eight categories of charities or can simply be unearmarked. Unearmarked funds are simply distributed by the percentages adopted by each convention body at the national convention. Your personal gift is also credited to your chapter and is another way to exceed its goal!

For those who are members of the "Friends of St. Andrew", thank you for your gift. For those who would like to contribute, please select a level of giving and send a check to:

Remember, you can earmark your gift to the following charities (scholarships/junior department-youth ministry/mission services/St. Herman's Seminary/St. Tikhon's Seminary/St. Vladimir's Seminary/Christ the Savior Seminary/St. Vladimir's camp and retreat center) Unspecified gifts will be added to unearmarked funds and distributed in the percentages designated by the convention body.

Chapter news

South River R Club, Chapter 167, took its annual trip to Lake Placid, NY, in January. After a chilly, but breathtaking nature hike through the icy High Falls Gorge, family and friends warmed up by a campfire and toasted marshmallows. This weekend excursion has been a South River tradition for more than 20 years for young and old alike. It's always filled with activities like skiing down Whiteface Mountain, cross country skiing, ice skating, dogsledding, bobsledding, and shopping, to name a few - and of course karaoke! Many thanks!!! ~Kristy Kaminsky

Always do right; this will gratify some people and astonish the rest.

Mark Twain (1835-1910)

Minneapolis MN: On February 17, 2006, as the temperature dropped to 23 below, the St. Mary's Cathedral teens drove 3 hours north to brave the cold for a weekend at the Stenach's family cabins. The topic of the retreat was Armageddon, the Second Coming of Christ. Father Stacey Richter led the weekend worship services and discussions. FOCA Youth Advisor Kristy Morse and Youth Director Ron Tucci organized the weekend and the outdoor activities of flag football, snowmobiling and "capture the flag." The Stenach family kept the wood stove and bonfire going along with providing plenty of good food and hot chocolate. With the wonderful support of the adult team, the youth survived the Arctic temperatures and they are already looking forward to repeating the experience again next winter.

NEW JERSEY DISTRICT:

Featuring the Spirit of Orthodoxy choir, under the direction of Maestro Aleksei Shipovalnikov, the New Jersey District sponsored its annual St. Nicholas/St. Andrew vespers service at SS. Peter & Paul Russian Orthodox Cathedral in Passaic, NJ on Sunday, December 11, 2005. After singing the responses to vespers, the choir then gave a Christmas concert. A reception followed. Proceeds benefitted the district scholarship fund.

Although the vespers service is an annual event, this is the first time the district had a guest choir instead of a featured speaker. The response was very successful. Michael Kupec, Jr., a member of both the choir and the district, helped coordinate the event.

UNYS Junior District Convention – Auburn, NY

The Juniors of the Upper New York State District held their annual convention and bowling tournament on November 12-13, 2005 in Auburn, NY. Sponsored by the Auburn Junior "R" Club, it was attended by 37 Juniors from Auburn, Cohoes, Endicott, Syracuse and Watervliet. A business meeting, including election of officers, was held on Saturday morning and bowling followed in the afternoon. Outgoing officers are Gov. Erica Wild, Lt. Gov. Alex Bendon, Exec. Secretary Valerie Wolanski, Rec. Secretary Nicole Watson and Treasurer Chris Mack. William Dupkanick, the district's senior Lt. governor, briefed the assembly on the various national FOCA events scheduled for 2006.

Prior to vespers, Fr. Stephen Mack inducted the new slate of district officers: Gov. Valerie Wolanski (Cohoes), Lt. Gov. Alex Bendon (Watervliet), Exec. Secretary Kathy Watson (Endicott), Rec. Secretary Lauren Berdar (Watervliet) and Treasurer Tanya Mack (Auburn).

After vespers, the Juniors participated in an evening of swimming, basketball and socializing at the Auburn YMCA. The Auburn parish provided lunch and dinner as well as housing for the Juniors overnight plus breakfast following Sunday's Divine Liturgy. Congratulations to all who participated! It was a wonderful event and special thanks are extended to the Auburn parish, the Auburn Juniors and their advisor, Mrs. Kathy Wild, and their spiritual advisor, Fr. Mack. A district youth rally is planned for July.

Welcome to Our Newest Junior Chapter!!!

Christ the Savior Junior "O" Club, Christ the Savior Church, Milton NY, Chapter #252-J, is the Fellowship's newest chapter with 17 members (3 adult members also joined the district chapter-at-large). The chapter's founding junior advisor is David Homyk. He says: "We are very excited about starting a new chapter here in Saratoga County, and we have a great group of kids who really enjoy doing things together, especially with the other Orthodox churches in the area. We kicked off our first activity with a bowling fun day with over 25 kids and parents having fun together. My hope is the kids will have the same wonderful experience that I had as a 35-year member of the 'R' Club. We have an active group of kids, and I'm looking forward to bringing them to both district and national events." Welcome Juniors!

Reflections on Berisso

Mission Argentina 2006

by Jennifer Mourar

It's amazing how a two week experience can change the way you think about life. One of the remarkable things about a short-term mission trip is how a team of people who barely know each other can grow together spiritually, forming lasting bonds in such a short period of time. Not only are these bonds forged between the mission team members, but between the team and the local community as well. This is exactly what happened on our January trip to Argentina.

During January thirteenth through the twenty-eighth, OCMC sent a team of six people to help repair the homes of three families in Berisso. A small town, located approximately one and a half hours south of Buenos Aires, Berisso clearly bears the scars of Argentina's recent economic breakdown. This collapse resulted in the closure of many businesses and factories, causing unemployment to sharply increase, as well as the devaluation of the country's currency, the peso. According to a statistic published in The Economist, "56% of Argentines had fallen below the official poverty line" by June 2002. In large cities, such as Buenos Aires, this poverty is not always evident upon first glance. However, one only needs to wait until nighttime, when the streets begin to fill with cartoneros, people who pick through the city's trash in order to earn some money, or drive outside of the city limits, where the communities consist of tightly packed houses made of corrugated tin and other materials. Although one could hardly consider Berisso or Argentina for that matter to fall under the definition of "third world" in the sense that an undeveloped country would, there are definitely elements of poverty everywhere - - both subtle and blatant. In Berisso, however, this poverty was solely monetary, as it was a community that is rich in generosity and hospitality.

We arrived in Berisso two days after our arrival in Argentina. Two days were spent in Buenos Aires, touring the city, getting acquainted with His Eminence Tarasios, Metropolitan of Buenos Aires and South America, and the mission of the Greek Archdiocese in Argentina, which is desperately in need of priests and teachers of catechism, who speak both Greek and Spanish. When we traveled to Berisso, the Metropolitan came with us in order to meet the families. We went directly to the colectividad, which was the Greek Orthodox community center in Berisso. The community welcomed our arrival and greeted us with open arms, offering us a large meal in typical Orthodox fashion. Many people from the community came to meet us, and even the local newspaper and TV station were there to interview us.

All three of the families whose homes we would be repairing were there. They were anxious to meet the North Americans who had traveled thousands of miles just to help them. The families included Efrosini Michalakakis and her son Demetri, Constantinos and Laureana Siutis, and the Touloupas family. Each family either suffered from some type of illness, or had a disability which rendered them unable to do any repair work on their homes.

Efrosini, a woman in her eighties, had just lost her husband and was still mourning his loss. Because of her age, she was physically unable to keep up with repairs on her home.

She had high walls and ceilings in her home and could not reach the mildew that was growing on them. In fact, mildew was a problem that plagued most of the homeowners. Another common problem, even worse than mildew, were the rotting floor boards that covered the floors in the homes of both Efrosini and the Touloupas. This was a precarious and dangerous situation. While the teams were working, there were several instances wherein people came close to falling through the floor, and Sheila, one of the local youth who collaborated with us, did. Luckily, she was not hurt, but it warned us to be especially careful.

In Efrosini's home, there were many large structural problems. The ceiling was pieced together and part of it needed to be replaced. Sections of a wall were falling apart, and when we tore off the corrugated tin layer that was attached to the outer portion of the wall, we immediately realized that it was a bad idea, since the underlying wood was rotted and eaten by termites. Additionally, the rooms needed to be painted, since the paint on the walls was faded and peeling. The Touloupas' home was also in need of these same repairs, as their home was constructed of similar materials. As for the Siutis, they lived in a home with stucco walls that had a different layout than the other two homes, and consequently different problems. While the other two were single homes, the Siutis lived in a small row house type structure. On the ground level were their bedroom, one bathroom, a living room, and a small kitchen. To go upstairs, one had to go outside and up a flight of stairs, where there were two more rooms, a small kitchen and a bathroom. All of the rooms were in disrepair and they too shared in the mildew problem. The walls were in need of some spackling, and there was a large crack in the ceiling that had to be mended. Both of the bathrooms had exposed electrical wires right next to the shower, and a few of the window panes were broken. Like all of the other homes, this one also was in need of a thorough paint job. We only had about seven days, and the work before us was daunting.

Fortunately for us, we had a wonderful team of people, comprised of both North Americans, as well as South Americans. Although small, it was a very diverse team, since there were people of varied ages, professions and experience. Fotios Buchas, president of the collectividad, was also a skilled civil engineer, who was integral in the planning and execution of this mission. He donated a large portion of his time to oversee the work and provided insight as to how certain jobs should be approached. Nathan Renfree, from California, was also a valuable addition to our team. Having lived and served with Project Mexico, where he oversaw construction projects for four years, he had a lot of experience to offer the team, and helped to oversee the work. The rest of the team members from North America included Adam Makrinos, a retired NYC transit worker, John Ganotis, a lawyer, Aaron Gall, a music student, Andy Lekos, director of short-term missions at OCMC, Cynthia Baldwin-Thanos, a long-term missionary, who is serving as Director of Social Action for the Archdiocese, and myself, a recent graduate from Penn State, who is now working for a financial company. As for the South American portion of the team, there were several youth who decided to help. The initial group included, Sheila and Sushai, who are sisters, Juan Pablo, Costas, and Martin. Despite some tension in the community between the youth of Berisso and the adults, they came every day, Oop! I accidentally got a little paint on Juan Pablo's nose!

sincerely wanting to help. Then, when Fr. Demetrios, the community's priest, called the local youth together for a meeting, he told them about what we were doing and that we could really use their help.

Amazingly, in true Christian love, they put their anger and grudges behind them to help the families. Our team grew, and despite the language barrier, we all quickly became friends.

The collectividad became the official place to meet. All of our meals, which were graciously prepared by the ladies of the community, were served and hungrily consumed there. Located next to the church, it was a place for us to rest, reenergize, and play. Although our days were long and the work was challenging, we always found the energy to play with Jessica. She was the six year old daughter of Vanessa, the woman who cooked most of our meals. Jessica and her mother lived in a small apartment above the collectividad, and while her mother was cooking or cleaning, Jessica played. Of course she was ecstatic to find that she suddenly had new playmates who were willing to play tag, listen to her read her favorite book of fairytales and watch her do tricks on her roller skates. Every time we walked through the doors of the collectividad, she was there to greet us with a big smile on her face.

Andy, Jessica, and Mrs. Buchas

One night after dinner, Andy pulled out a game called "pass the pigs," which involved rolling two little plastic pigs, like dice. Depending on how they landed you could either earn points or you would have to pass them on. Jessica won the first game and stayed on this winning streak for the next four games. Needless to say, she was thrilled.

It's remarkable how much can be accomplished when you have a team of people working together for a common goal in the name of Christ. It really becomes evident that through Christ anything is possible. After seven days, we had replaced the flooring in the Michalakakis' and the Siutis' homes, painted every room in all three homes, spackled walls, cleaned off mildew, cleaned floors, and repaired roofing.

The faulty ceiling in Efrosini's home was ripped off, and was repaired by some of Fotis' men after our departure, and a local electrician devoted an entire Saturday in order to fix the electrical problems at the Siutis house. During the week in which we were doing work, the homeowners were all a little apprehensive. Here we were ripping up their floors and they did not know if we would really be able to do all of the work, in spite of our good intentions. It was especially difficult for Efrosini, since her husband had built their house. In order to make the necessary repairs, we had to change and replace a lot of things that he had done. She was notably distressed during the week, and we were all empathetic with her, after all, she had just lost a husband. Yet, at the end of the week, everything came together. It was so rewarding to go into the homes and walk on fresh, strong wooden floors and see the newly painted walls, which made the rooms brighter.

Fr. Demetrios blessing Efrosini's house.

On our last day in Berisso, Father Demetrios, who had been working alongside of us the entire time, blessed each home with holy water and a basil leaf. As we followed Father into each room, we sang "When Thou O Lord was Baptized in the River Jordan," in Spanish, Greek, and English. It was very emotional, and each family cried as their home was being blessed – even Fr. Demetrios had tears streaming from his eyes as he was doing the blessing.

The families thanked us profusely, saying that they would never forget us, or what we did. Efrosini said that she would always keep us in her heart and kept kissing and hugging us. As a final gift, Andy presented each family with either an icon of Christ or of the Theotokos.

Leaving Berisso was very difficult. It meant leaving behind many new friends and people that we had grown to look upon as family. Although we had come to help them, the community taught us many things. They clearly demonstrated God's commandment to "love thy neighbor as thyself" by taking us into their homes, feeding us, and treating us as if we were family. They shared what they had with us and tended to our every need. On the other hand, the adults learned that maybe the youth in their community were not so bad after all. After seeing that the youth had been working hard to help us repair the homes, some of the anger between the two factions started to dissolve. Although they still have a long way to go in achieving true forgiveness and understanding of each other, they have at least made a start. As we drove away from Berisso, I looked back at the collectividad, and there was Jessica, waving at us and crying. At that moment, I knew that a part of me would always remain in this small town in Argentina, where the people had shared with us the intangible riches of love, generosity and friendship.

Editor's note:

Jennifer Mourar, who recently graduated from Penn State and now works for Vanguard outside of Philadelphia, became a new Fellowship member after hearing about the FOCA's short-term OCMC missionary scholarship program from Father John Reeves, her priest at State College, PA. She has a degree in music and her home parish is Holy Trinity Church (OCA) in Pottstown, PA. Jennifer would like to pursue missionary work in the future, and especially enjoys working with children. "I would like to thank each and every member of the Fellowship for enabling me to participate on the mission trip to Argentina. Without this support, I probably wouldn't have been able to go. It's an extremely rewarding experience and I encourage everyone, especially young people, to try to participate in at least one OCMC trip," Jennifer added.

2006 FOCA National Summer Sports Tournament

Aug. 30, 31 2006 • Myrtle Beach, SC

Hosted by: St. Gregory of Palamas FOCA Club Chap. 246

FOCA Announces Myrtle Beach, Site of 2006 Summer Sports Tournament.

For those of you out there who haven't heard the exciting news, the 2006 Summer Sports Tournament is being held in Myrtle Beach, SC, immediately preceding the National Convention. Russell Petronko of the sponsoring chapter #246 says: "I think that this will be a great opportunity for people to kill two birds with one stone." For those of you that have never attended a FOCA National Sports tournament, the format can be competitive or as relaxed as you care to make it. Golfers of all abilities participate, and an emphasis for the event is placed on golfing enjoyment and fellowship. In addition to the convenient scheduling for convention goers, Myrtle Beach has long been recognized as being one of the premier destinations in the world for discriminating golfers. "If you haven't golfed in Myrtle you are absolutely missing a great experience," Petronko adds. This year's sports tournament boasts another first in the fact that contestants will be able to play not one, but two courses to determine the champion. The tentative schedule has Wednesday's round taking place at Myrtlewood Golf Club's Pines Course. The Pines course has been a Myrtle Beach favorite for more than 20 years. This classic design reflects the typical Low-country flavor and beckons to the more casual relaxed manner so symbolic of the South Carolina coast. The course, with its superbly-maintained Bent greens will challenge any skill level. This is a course that has become a real favorite with returning golfers, as it is consistently well kept. Thursday's round will take place at the beautiful Arcadian Shores Golf Club. Traditional in concept, both Golf Digest and Golf Magazine have acknowledged this facility as a course of distinction. This beautifully-maintained Rees Jones design winds through clusters of live oaks and natural lakes. Says Petronko: "At either course I think our participants will find great, playable golf for an exceptional value, especially by north-east standards." The festivities are slated to wrap up with an afternoon social at Finn McCool's, one of Myrtle favorite watering holes, and finally with the awards ceremony which will be held in conjunction with the National Convention's Thursday night event. All in all, this year's tournament sounds like one not to be missed. Why not bring the whole family down to Myrtle Beach for both the Summer Sports Tournament and the National Convention. Information regarding tournament sign up and sponsorship will be available shortly or by contacting Russell Petronko: 732-259-7231 or rpetronko@hotmail.com.

On Sunday, June 11th, the church celebrates Pentecost Sunday — the birthday of the church. On this day the Apostles were given power by the Holy Spirit to speak in many languages and were given the wisdom to preach.

In many of the countries from which are ancestors came this was called “Green Sunday.” It was a custom on this day to decorate homes and churches with green branches. The green branches represent the rebirth of nature and the birth of the church. Perhaps you could continue this custom in your own home by having an adult prune some green branches and you can decorate your porch or front door.

A more modern way of celebrating this day is to make cupcakes with an adult supervising and decorate them with green icing, further celebrating Green Sunday. Place a candle in one of them and sing “O Heavenly King” or the Troparian of Pentecost as a way of celebrating the birthday of the church.
